

Toucan Art

Toucans can be found in the tropical forests of South America, and can also find homes in tree hollows or abandoned woodpecker holes.

What do they look like?

You can't talk about the toucan without mentioning that infamous beak. The toucan's beak is the most remarkable and notable aspect of their appearance. Measuring about 8 inches long, the beak of a toucan makes up  $\frac{1}{3}$  of the bird's total length.

It may look pretty big, but thankfully for the toucan their beaks are not too heavy. It is composed of protein keratin, which makes it much lighter than you would think just by looking.

Toucans have a black body and white throat, but the colourful and most memorable aspect of their appearance is still that giant beak!

Please look at the following video on youtube, it will help you draw a beautiful Toucan. I would love to see your finished product on seesaw.
